"Viewing life through the lens of God's grace!"

The Normal Life

Written by Art Henkel

The normal life is not to be confused with the common life. The common life is one that can be viewed far too often, around the world. It consists of man trying to carve out his existence by relying on self, independent of God. The normal life is what God has always intended for us. One that is completely dependent on God living His life in and through an individual, revealing His faultless character. This is the life God has intended man to experience all along. A life in Him, that is normally supernatural.
